Ready for the GT4 European Series powered by RAFA Racing Club final?
Last challenge of 2025 for the Lotus Emira #54
on the Barcelona circuit from 10 to 12 October

The Lotus PB Racing team and the two drivers Stefano D'Aste and Alberto Naska will take to the track next weekend for the Spanish grand finale of the GT4 European Series, aiming for a place on the podium not only in the race.

The battle for this year's title is still ongoing, with nothing at stake, among the Pro-Am contenders, who will have to fight it out among a 44-car field to secure honours

It was all change at the top of the Pro-Am points after the Nürburgring: Stefano D'Aste and Alberto Naska, who led the Lotus GT4 adventure, are in sixth place in the Pro-AM standings, but they can still fight for third place on the podium. It will be an exciting finale, as nothing has been decided yet. The Catalan circuit, a benchmark for European motorsport, will amplify the challenge with its characteristics that leave nothing out: from fast corners to slow corners, with rapid changes of direction. There are slight differences in altitude and only one long straight; perfect balance will make the difference. Heroes Valley and the Lotus PB Racing team are focused and eager to see the blameless Stefano D'Aste and new-dad Alberto Naska take on Elf, Seat and La Caixa.

The twin GT4 European Series races will be held on the undercard of the GT World powered by AWS, with an impressive line-up of drivers and cars: an event not to be missed for motorsport and supercar fans.

The GT4 programme includes free practice and pre-qualifying on Friday 10 October at 10.10 a.m. and 1.40 p.m.

Qualifying will be at 12.10 pm on Saturday and Race 1 at 5.30 pm.

Race 2 will start at 1.20 pm on Sunday 12 October.

As always, Heroes Valley and the Lotus PB Racing team look forward to seeing you at the track or streaming live on the GT World YouTube channel to cheer on the Lotus Emira #54.
